INTRODUCTION

The records of the 1968 Constitutional Convention consist of records from the Office of the Secretary and from subject committees. Included are journals, orders of business, debates in the Committee of the Whole, delegate and committee proposals, committee reports, communications, roll call, and record cards. Committee records include minutes, agenda, testimonies, correspondence, digests of proposals and scrapbooks. These records total approximately 7.0 linear feet.

AGENCY HISTORY

Act 222, Session Laws of Hawaii, 1967 was enacted by the legislature to provide for a constitutional convention. It provided for the election of the delegates, their compensation, submission of the convention's work and other pre-convention preparations. In accordance with Act 222 and pursuant to a proclamation issued by the Governor, 82 delegates to the 1968 Constitutional Convention were elected in a special election held June 1, 1968. 63 delegates were elected from Oahu and 19 from the neighbor islands.

The second constitutional convention since annexation by the United States was called to order July 15, 1968 in the McKinley High School Auditorium by Delegate Jack K. Suwa, First Representative District who acted as temporary chairman. The convention officers were: President, Hebden Porteus, Fifteenth District; Secretary, Tadao Beppu, Sixteenth District; and Assistant Secretary, Peter C. Lewis, Twelfth District. Five vice-presidents were also named: Jack K. Suwa, First District; William E. Fernandes, Eighteenth District; Ed C. Bryan, Tenth District; Robert D. Y. Chang, Eighth District; and Kazuo Kage, Seventh District. These officers were elected by affirmative vote by a majority of the membership.

12 major subject committees were established as well as two housekeeping or administrative committees. These subject committees were: 1) Bill of Rights, Suffrage and Elections; 2) Legislative Powers and Functions; 3) Legislative Apportionment and Districting; 4) Executive; 5) Judiciary; 6) Taxation and Finance; 7) Local Government; 8) Public Health, Education and Welfare; 9) Agriculture, Conservation and Land and Hawaiian Homes; 10) Revision, Amendment and Other Provisions; 11) Style; and 12) Submission and Information. The housekeeping committees were 1) Accounts and Printing and 2) Rules.

Each Constitutional Convention delegate could introduce proposals to amend the constitution. The Convention President referred each delegate proposal to a standing committee which studied the proposals, received expert testimony and held public hearings.

The committee would draft a report and committee proposal to be sent to the convention for passage on first reading. After first reading passage the committee proposal was sent to the Committee of the Whole, composed of the entire convention acting as a large committee, for further debate. These debates form the basis for the intent of the committee proposals.

After debates and amendments to the committee proposal, the convention would pass it on second reading. Next, the Committee on Style would review the committee proposal to ensure correct and consistent grammar making any necessary amendments before sending it to the convention for passage on third and final reading by a majority affirmative vote. The final form of the constitution lastly went to the Committee on Submission and Information which by resolution recommended the method and manner of presentation to the electorate.

The 1968 Constitutional Convention adjourned on October 21, 1968 after 57 days of deliberations. 23 amendments were recommended by the delegates and all but one, lowering the voting age from 20 to 18, were approved by the voters in the general election of November 5, 1968.
