Scope and Content

The Jonah Kuhio Kalaniana'ole Papers, totaling 4.3 linear feet, document Kalaniana'ole's 19 year career in office as Delegate to Congress, 1903-1922. They also contain congressional records and some correspondence from Harold Baldwin, who served out the remainder of Kalaniana'ole's unexpired term until 1923 after Kalaniana'ole died.

The collection contains six series: 1.) U.S. Congress Records; 2.) Subject Correspondence; 3.) Name Correspondence; 4.) U.S. Departments Correspondence; 5.) Territorial Departments Correspondence; and 6.) City and County Departments Correspondence.

The U.S. Congress Records, series #1, contains copies of the bills Kalaniana'ole introduced, correspondence and related documents and printed material.

The five correspondence series document Kalaniana'ole's actions to introduce or testify on behalf of legislation beneficial to Hawaii. They contain correspondence with individual constituents, private organizations such as the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce, and various government agencies.

The correspondence and bill series, in comparison to other delegate to congress collections, reflect unusually close consultation between the delegate, the governor and the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce on legislation of interest to Hawaii. Series #3, Name Correspondence, contains evidence of the delegate's strong interest in Hawaii electoral politics through detailed correspondence with such persons as Noa Aluli, C.W. Ashford, John C. Lane, and W.A. Kinney. In addition, series #1, Congressional Records, as noted above, contains the Congressional records of Harold Baldwin (1871-1946), Kalaniana'ole's successor, who served out the one year of Kuhio's unexpired term in a special election.

Documentation on Kalaniana'ole's efforts to effect passage of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act is found mainly in series #1, U.S. Congress Records by date, and also under series #2, Subject Correspondence, under "Fisher Investigation," "Rehabilitation," and some items under "Governor, 1918-1921."

During processing of the collection, the six series were rearranged into an order reflecting their legislative purpose, beginning with the bills file, and followed by the various correspondence files as described above.

See also the Kalaniana'ole Collection, M-80, and the Alexander G.M. Robertson Papers, M-390, for additional letters from Kalaniana'ole. The Robertson papers contain 26 letters from him, between 1904-1909.

Series Descriptions

1. U.S. Congress Records. 1903-1923. 13 linear inches.

Arranged alphabetically by type of record.

Documents Kalaniana'ole's actions to introduce bills and obtain favorable consideration of legislation of interest to Hawaii. Also documents the legislation of Harold Baldwin. Contains typescript bill drafts, printed House bill copies, Senate companion bills, typescript statements of testimony, committee reports, printed laws, correspondence, petitions from the public, resolutions from the Territorial legislature and printed committee hearings.

Includes correspondence relating to a series of four congressional visits to Hawaii that Kuhio arranged for the purpose of familiarizing key congressional figures with Hawaii affairs, in particular, the sugar situation; the army and navy defense question as it pertained to Schofield Barracks and Pearl Harbor; and various needs for public works projects, including a Honolulu federal building and harbor improvements.

Subjects of legislation include the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act of 1919-1921, the county home rule bill, vocational education, the Hilo breakwater, post office roads, and numerous other bills of interest to Hawaii. KAMALO SUGAR COMPANY LIMITED

Incorporated May 1899. President, James F. Morgan; Secretary, J. J. Egan; Treasurer, Frank Hustace. It is assumed that lack of adequate supply of fresh water for irrigation was main cause of demise of the company. A sheriff's sale of stock was held August 21, 1902. Company was last listed in the 1907 City Directory. Corporation dissolved December 15, 1915. Presumably, these records of the company were exhibits in Equity case #1089, First Circuit Court.

KANEOHE PLANTATION

Dowager Queen Hazaleleponi Kapahuhaili Kalama (1817 – 1870), owned 20,000 acres of land in Kaneohe in the early 1860's. Part of this land, Kaneohe Plantation, was planted in sugar cane. A mill was built around 1864 with equipment shipped from Liverpool. Charles Coffin Harris (1822 – 1881), a prominent lawyer, was the Queen's partner and manager of the plantation. The labor force was primarily Hawaiian women, they being replaced later by Chinese coolies.

On October 7, 1866, the sugar mill, trash house, 70,000 lbs. of sugar and about 1,000 sugar kegs burned, with a total loss valued at about $30,000. The mill was not rebuilt, although cane was grown on the land until the late 1880's. Title to the land was passed to C. C. Harris, then to his daughter, Nannie R. (Harris) Rice. It was later purchased by James B. Castle. After 1890 much of this land was used for cattle range until urban spread reached the area.

KAPIOLANI PARK ASSOCIATION

1876 - 1896

The Kapiolani Park Association was formed on November 8, 1876, when a group of people interested in the establishment of a park and fairground gathered at the rooms of the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce. Among them was His Majesty King Kalakaua, who offered 300 acres in Waikiki (the extent to which Crown Commissioners were able to lease) for a "nominal fee". An election of officers resulted in the following men being elected: president, Captain James Makee; vice-president, Archibald S. Cleghorn; secretary, Henry MacFarlane; and treasurer, John H. Paty. A committee was created to draft a charter and present it to the government and on December 22, 1876, the Kapiolani Park Association was granted its charter of incorporation.

Besides leasing land from the Crown, the group also leased adjoining lands from Allen Herbert in 1877. Dedication ceremonies for the park were held on Kamehameha Day, June 11, 1877, with King Kalakaua and the Royal Family present. The highlight of the program was a speech by the King followed by horse racing at the park track.

Two hundred shares were offered at $50 each, entitling each shareholder to bid on leases for lots in Kapiolani Park. Captain Makee passed away in 1879, and was succeeded by vice-president A.S. Cleghorn, who served as president until 1896 when control of Kapiolani Park was turned over to the Honolulu Park Commission.

Because of the limited funds available for its large land area, the Association could barely manage to keep up the land and water areas of Kapiolani Park. It was often in debt and in 1881, received $5,000 from the Legislature for "improvements", and to help repay its $3,000 debt. It also received financial support from private citizens and organizations and a little income from selling rights for cutting firewood and grass and picking algaroba beans.

Finally in the spring of 1896, the Kapiolani Park Association passed a Resolution in regard to Act 53, Session Laws 1896, releasing and conveying its leaseholds and other property to the Republic of Hawaii for the creation of a free public Kapiolani Park under the control, management, and possession of six commissioners serving six-year terms. William Irwin, E.S. Cunha, and Cecil Brown were elected to represent the Association on the Honolulu Park Commission, of which Mr. Irwin was elected chairman.

The records of the Kapiolani Park Association consist of ten folders, a certificate book (of shares) and a bound book containing the minutes and correspondence of the Kapiolani Park Association and the Honolulu Park Commission, 1876 to 1902.
