NOTE: MARIN'S JOURNAL

Marin's original journal is not filed or documented in the Archives' collections; and its whereabouts are unknown.

Extracts from the journal, for the years 1809-1826, were translated into English by Robert C. Wyllie in 1847, and is the only known version of Marin's journal to exist.

Wyllie's original translation is filed in the Hawaii State Archives, in the Safe, and requires permission of the State Archivist or Branch Chief to be viewed.

A transcript of Wyllie's translation is published in two books:

- Don Francisco de Paula Marin, by R. Gast. (Ref. B M337G) pg. 199-307.

Lincoln Loy McCandless

Introduction

The papers of Lincoln Loy McCandless, prominent early Territorial businessman, politician and Delegate to Congress, date from 1891-1937, and document his business and political careers. The majority of the collection consists of papers relating to his tenure as Delegate to U.S. Congress from Hawaii (1933-1934). Other records include financial accounts and correspondence. The papers contain 7.2 linear feet, and were deposited in the Archives by Mrs. Elizabeth L. McCandless on February 17, 1949. There are no restrictions.

Biographical Sketch

- 1859--Born, September 18, Indiana, Pennsylvania. Learned well drilling business from father at oil wells in West Virginia.
- 1882--Arrived in Honolulu, went into business with brothers John A. and James S. McCandless drilling artesian wells for sugar and rice plantations.

Scope and Content Note

The Lincoln Loy McCandless Papers span the years 1891-1937, and document his personal, business and political life. The collection contains no material before 1891, and very little after 1935. The collection contains a very limited amount of material on artesian well drilling, a good deal on his relationship with the early Hawaii Democratic Party, and much on his political career, especially his tenure as Delegate to U.S. Congress.

The collection is arranged into three subgroups: Personal Papers, Business Records, and Political Career. The Personal Papers contain correspondence with James S. McCandless, his brother, acting as his agent, and newspaper clippings containing information about his political career in Hawaii.

The Business Records subgroup contains correspondence and financial records documenting his business interests in rice, cattle, road construction, stock investment and building rentals. Information on his political career may also be found in the business correspondence.

The Political Career subgroup contains papers relating to his Hawaii legislative career (1898-1906), his several attempts at elected political office (1906-1918), and his term as Delegate to Congress (1933-1934).

For further information on his political career, see also the transcript of witnesses' depositions taken in Hawaii relating to McCandless' suit against Samuel Wilder King for election fraud in the 1934 Delegate to Congress election campaign. See series #14, Papers relating to Delegate to Congress, Samuel Wilder King Collection, M-472.

The collection combines two formerly separate collections: the L.L. McCandless private papers collection (U-144) and the McCandless Delegate to Congress collection (M-163). Three subgroups were created to better organize the papers and the series were arranged under appropriate subgroups.

Series Descriptions

I. Personal Papers. (1896-1934).

Organized into three series: Correspondence with James S. McCandless; Insurance papers; and Newspaper clippings.

1. Correspondence with James S. McCandless. 1906-1934. 0.75 linear inches.

Arranged chronologically.

Documents McCandless' close relationship with James S. McCandless, his brother, in his business and personal life. Contains mostly letters from James S. McCandless to Lincoln when the latter took trips to West Virginia, California, and other mainland states, and served in Washington as Delegate to Congress, 1933-1934. The 1930's letters show James McCandless acting as agent for Lincoln's business interests, including stock investment and well drilling in Hawaii. The series also contains information on Lincoln McCandless' legislative program in Congress. A copy of a 1931 letter to the IRS gives his net worth for 1931. See also series #8, Delegate to Congress, Name Correspondence subseries, folders on Lester Marks, for information on similar subjects, both family and business.

2. Insurance Papers. 1896-1928. 2.0 linear inches.

Arranged chronologically by date of purchase.

Contains personal policies McCandless took out on himself and his wife, Elizabeth L. McCandless. Contains information showing that he frequently borrowed on the policies. Also contains premium payment receipts, dividend notices, loan receipts and audit statements.

3. Newspaper Clippings. 1905-1924. 1.75 linear inches.

Arranged chronologically.

Document McCandless' personal and political career in Hawaii. Contains clippings from Honolulu papers, mainly the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, the Pacific Commercial Advertiser, and the New Freedom. The clippings concern mainly his 1914 campaign for Delegate to Congress, his 1918 campaigns for appointment to governor and for Delegate. The printed testimony documents McCandless' appearance in December, 1909, before the U.S. House of Representatives Committee on Territories to testify on behalf of amending the section of the Organic Act on homesteads. Also contains a Hawaiian language translation of that testimony. See also Series #7, Papers re Representative and Senator, folder on "Election material--1906-1934," and series #4, Business Correspondence, which document much of same activity.

II. Business Records. (1891-1937).

Organized into three series: Business correspondence; Legal documents; and Financial records.

4. Business Correspondence. 1891-1937. 5.75 linear inches.
Arranged chronologically.

Documents McCandless' business activities in real estate, rice growing, cattle ranching, investing and road construction. Also contains many letters on political subjects such as local Democratic party politics and his plans concerning various political campaigns. Contains letters, 1933-1934, from his ranch and business managers in Waiahole-Waikane valleys, Ewa district, Oahu, and Napoopoo, South Kona, Hawaii; others from his renters. Bulk of correspondence from 1901-1935; few pre-1901 items. Many references to land purchases, leases, mortgages, boundary and fence questions and court cases on land ownership.

5. Legal Documents. ca. 1900-1935. 5.25 linear inches.
Arranged alphabetically by type of record.

Documents various aspects of McCandless' business activities. Contains deeds, title abstract documents, correspondence, and the partnership papers, annual reports and financial statements of the Metropolitan Meat Co. The majority of the deeds and title abstracts date from 1900, but there is little indication how McCandless used them, so it is difficult from the immediate evidence to exactly date the series. Some date to 1884, but that reflects the date of the original document in the names of other parties, rather than when McCandless received the deed or ordered the title search. The deeds and title abstracts concern real estate in Kahana, Waiahole, Waikane, Kaneohe, Palama, Kalia, Kapahulu, Kapalama, Waiele, Waimalu, Manana-nui, Waialua and Makua on Oahu, and Kona on Hawaii. Also includes documents on the estate of Manuel Caldeira. See also series #6, Financial Records, Daily Financial Memoranda for information re commercial uses of his land.

6. Financial Records. 1899-1916. 1.25 linear feet
Arranged alphabetically by type of record.

Documents parts of McCandless' financial and business activities. Contains bank books, a check book, daybooks and journals of special accounts. The daybooks (1901-1914) document McCandless' daily financial transactions concerning rice growing, cattle ranching, road construction and stock investments. They contain receipts and payments for rents, slaughter house sales, stock dividends, wages and ranching supplies. The journals of special accounts contain rice, cattle and fish pond receipts, and returns from stock investments in Hawaii companies, mainly in sugar plantations.

III. Political Career. (1898-1935).

Organized into four series: Papers relating to legislative career; Papers relating to Delegate to Congress; Papers relating to Presidency, Territorial Board of Commissioners of Agriculture and Forestry; and Papers relating to election campaigns.

7. Papers re Legislative Career in Republic and Territory Legislature. n.d., 1903-1904; 1922. 3.0 linear inches.
Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Documents McCandless' one term as representative, and one term as senator, both as a Republican, particularly his committee service as a senator. Contains committee work files, correspondence, typescript committee reports, and territorial budget information. Constituent correspondence in both English and Hawaiian languages.

8. Papers re Delegate to Congress. 1933-1934. 4.25 linear feet.

Arranged in seven subseries: City and County correspondence, U.S. Departments correspondence, Territorial Departments correspondence, Subject correspondence, Name correspondence originating in Hawaii, Personal correspondence originating from mainland addresses, and papers relating to the Democratic Party.

Series documents McCandless' 1933-1934 term as Delegate to Congress. McCandless' Congressional bills filed in Subject Correspondence subseries. McCandless took particular interest in legislation to abolish Prohibition in Hawaii, to increase the lands held by the Hawaiian Homes Commission, and to introduce statehood.

City and County Correspondence. 1933-1934. 0.25 linear inches.

Arranged alphabetically by city department.

Documents McCandless' communication with Honolulu City and County relating to federal legislation on issues such as the Rankin bill and the reorganization of the Honolulu police department after the Massie case.

Territorial Departments Correspondence. 1933-1934. 2.25 linear inches.

Arranged alphabetically by department name.

Documents McCandless' communication with Hawaii Territorial departments re federal legislation of interest to them, such as federal pay for the Hawaii Adjutant-General, federal public works funds and jobs programs.

U.S. Departments Correspondence. 1933-1934. 2 linear inches.

Arranged alphabetically by federal department.

Documents McCandless' communication with federal agencies concerning legislation and constituent requests. These inquiries included requests to apply for federal grants-in-aid for Hawaii; to inquire about federal departmental rules interpretations relating to Hawaii, particularly in the case of newly introduced legislation; to recommend appointments, especially to the Secretary of the Interior; to ask for advice about constituent inquiries; and to expedite federal departmental business as it applied to Hawaii.

Subject Correspondence. 1933-1934. 2.5 linear feet.
Arranged alphabetically.

Documents McCandless' communication mainly with constituents. Contains petitions and correspondence from constituents and McCandless' replies relating to Hawaii's role (i.e., benefits, requirements, etc.) in New Deal federal programs such as the National Industrial Recovery Act, the Public Works Administration of the National Recovery Act, the Federal Emergency Recovery Act, and the Agricultural Adjustment Act. Also contains the bills he introduced, filed by subject, and McCandless' statements on the floor of the House about the Rankin bill, the Agricultural Adjustment Act and the Jones-Costigan bill.

Name Correspondence. 1933-1934. 8.25 linear inches.
Arranged alphabetically.

Documents McCandless' communication with acquaintances in Hawaii from whom he usually received more than one letter. Series contains information about Hawaii and Washington, D.C. Democratic Party politics, and some information about McCandless' travel plans.

Personal Correspondence. 1933-1934. 2.25 linear inches.
Arranged alphabetically.

Documents McCandless' communication with mainland correspondents. Generally contains lobbying requests from individuals and organizations on topics of legislation relating to his committee assignments.

Papers relating to Democratic Party. 1933-1934. 6 linear inches.
Arranged alphabetically by subject or name of correspondent.

Documents McCandless' communication with officers of the Hawaii Democratic Party and acquaintances on Hawaii politics. Some of the 1934 correspondence contains information on his 1934 reelection campaign. The Lester Marks correspondence folders contain many personal and business details. See also the James S. McCandless correspondence (series #1) and the Business Correspondence (series #4) for additional information on his business and political life.

9. Papers re Presidency, Territorial Board of Commissioners of Agriculture and Forestry. April-October, 1935. 1.25 linear inches.
Arranged chronologically.

Documents McCandless' appointment to office as president of the Board of Commissioners of Agriculture and Forestry, his contest with other board members over patronage appointments, and his resignation seven months later. Contains correspondence, typescript board minutes, and McCandless' letter of resignation to Governor Poindexter.

10. Papers re Election Campaigns. 1906-1934. 0.5 linear inch
Arranged chronologically.

Documents McCandless' election campaigns after his 1902-1906 senatorial term. Contains posters, election fliers, newspaper advertisement proof sheets, Democratic Party platform copies, Hawaiian and English language sample election ballots and speeches. See also series #3, Newspaper clippings, for other information on campaigns.

MCGREW-COOPER-WOOD FAMILY PAPERS

INTRODUCTION

The McGrew-Cooper-Wood Family Papers were collected, either directly or via inheritance, by Frances Cooper Wood, who donated them to the Archives in several increments between 1968 and 1977. The collection consists mostly of personal correspondence of members of the families of Drs. John S. McGrew and Charles B. Cooper, plus mementos, photographs and some business and government documents. The collection consists of 22.75 linear inches.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES

John Strayer McGrew was born in Lancaster, Ohio, on December 23, 1825. He graduated from medical school in 1847. His first wife died in 1851 and he married Pauline Gillet in 1866. He moved to Hawaii in 1867 and opened a medical practice in Honolulu in association with Dr. R. A. S. Wood. He served as physician to the courts of Lunalilo and Kalakaua (1873-1891); as President of the Honolulu Medical Society (1892-1896); and was professor emeritus at the Hawaiian School of Tropical Medicine (1905). He was also an honorary editor of the Annexationist newspaper, "Hawaiian Star," and was known as the "Father of Annexation," apparently for his unequivocal advocacy of the Annexationist cause. He died in Honolulu on November 14, 1911. Two children of the second marriage survived him: a son, John Tarn McGrew, who spent almost his entire adult life as an expatriate in Paris, and a daughter, Katherine Christie McGrew.

Katherine McGrew was born in Honolulu in February, 1873, and married Charles Bryant Cooper on March 24, 1897. She travelled extensively in Europe and Asia both before and after her marriage. Her graciousness and charm, coupled with friendship with Lucius Pinkham, resulted in her serving as his hostess from 1913-1918 while Pinkham, a bachelor, was Governor of the Territory of Hawaii. She moved to Maui in 1943 where she lived out her years as "Aunt Kate." Upon her death in August, 1963, her home became a girls' school, Seabury Hall.

Charles Bryant Cooper was born in Babylon, New York, on November 19, 1864. He practiced medicine in Butte, Montana, before emigrating to Hawaii in 1891 for reasons of health. In 1893, he was appointed police, prison and regimental surgeon by the Hawaiian government. He was an attending physician at Queen's Hospital from 1894 to 1904, during which time he married and was appointed to the Territorial Board of Health (1900). In 1904 he became President of the Board of Health. As such, he inaugurated a plan for establishing a Federal program in Hawaii to research a cure for leprosy. He was appointed Commissioner of Public Health in 1904, to represent the Territory at annual meetings of state and territorial public health officers. He held this appointment through 1919. He served as a Lieutenant Colonel and Surgeon General in the Hawaii National Guard from 1899, and as an officer in the Army Reserve Medical Corps from 1910. In 1922, he undertook service in Europe for the Veterans Bureau and as a "dollar-a-year-man" for President Harding. He remained active in many local organizations and was involved in local politics at the same time that he continued his medical practice. He died in November, 1940, and was survived by his wife and three children, Charles Bryant Cooper, Jr., (1900-1958), John McGrew Cooper, (1902?-1957) and Frances Duyckinck Cooper Wood (1904-).

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

By its diversity of items, this collection provides interesting examples of period materials, while it simultaneously paints a very detailed picture of the life of a socially prominent caucasian family from the last days of the Hawaiian monarchy up to the first years of statehood, reflecting their concerns, interests and activities. The oldest item is a laissez-passer issued to Dr. McGrew by the Union Army in 1865; the most recent is a 1975 letter to Frances Cooper Wood from an old friend.

The collection consists mainly of correspondence, both originated and received by members of the McGrew, Cooper and Wood families, from 1897 through 1976. The bulk of the intra-family correspondence dates from ca. 1915 - ca. 1955. There are relatively few letters prior to 1915, and while there is a great deal from after 1955, much of it is from the wife of a Chinese-American, whom the Coopers had befriended as a boy, to Frances Cooper Wood, and from the Coopers' Japanese-American housekeeper, to both Katherine McGrew Cooper and Frances Cooper Wood, a correspondence which actually began in 1922. The letters deal mostly with domestic matters, but a few address events of significance, such as the attack on Pearl Harbor. Many are written by travelling friends or family members on letterhead stationery from old and famous hostelrys and from a variety of ships at sea, although the content is usually rather commonplace. Some few were written by people of note, such as King Kalakaua, Princess Liliuokalani, U. S. President Warren G. Harding and Hawaii Governor Lucius E. Pinkham. The latter were almost all written after his term as Governor ended and he had moved to the Mainland.

The remainder of the collection is a diverse assortment of photographs, diaries, and official documents such as commissions, certificates of appointment and passports. There are as well business records and other memorabilia, including medals, invitations, calling cards, newspaper clippings, medical treatises and anecdotal historical manuscripts and typescripts dealing with various aspects of life in Hawaii ca. 1900.

MC KINLEY MEMORIAL COMMITTEE

Soon after President William McKinley was assassinated on September 6, 1901, a national memorial foundation was formed. Governor Sanford B. Dole was named chairman of the local memorial committee. Funds were solicited in Hawaii and suggestions were sought as to the form a local memorial might take, though no decision was reached for almost ten years. Finally, when the Honolulu High School was moved to a new site and larger new buildings, it was decided to rename the school McKinley High School. Funds held by the McKinley Memorial Committee were consigned, partly, for a bronze statue of President McKinley, to stand in front of the main school building. The remaining funds were to be used to endow a library for the new school and for upkeep of the statue. The statue was unveiled February 23, 1911.

MYRTLE BOAT CLUB

The Myrtle Boat Club was organized February 5, 1883, with seven charter members. The members built their own boat house. A year later, a larger boat house was built on former Naval Reservation land along the Honolulu Harbor shoreline (just mauka of the present Pier 5). Regattas were regularly held on July 4th and in mid-September, with the Myrtle members contesting against other boat clubs in sail boat races, rowing and outrigger canoe races. Their colors were red and white. The club was active up to 1940, and later died a quiet death during World War II.
