Introduction

This collection contains paper records, primarily oversized illustrations and political cartoons by Ralph O. Yardley. They were submitted for publication in the Honolulu Advertiser, a newspaper of daily circulation, from 1900 to 1902, while the artist resided in Honolulu. Some of the cartoons bear dates, indicating the date they were published in the newspaper.

Biographical Information

Ralph Oswald Yardley was born in Stockton, California on September 2, 1878. Following graduation from Stockton High School, he studied in San Francisco at the Mark Hopkins Art Institute and Partington Art School. In 1898 he took his first job as a quick-sketch artist for the San Francisco Examiner. In 1900 he continued in this line of work in Hawaii for the Honolulu Advertiser. The years 1905 – 1907 were spent in New York City in the art department of the New York Globe. He then returned to San Francisco where he worked for two years for The Call. In 1921 Yardley returned to his native city and began a 30-year tenure as a cartoonist for the Stockton Record. Upon retirement, he divided his time between Stockton and the Monterey Peninsula. Yardley died in Stockton on December 6, 1961.

Some of Yardley's work was displayed in 1903 at an exhibit called San Francisco Newspaper Artists. The bulk of his works are divided between the Haggin Museum in Stockton, California and the Huntington Library in San Marino, California.

Scope and Content Note

This collection contains approximately 350 political cartoons drawn by the artist Ralph O. Yardley. Some are dated, and by published newspaper accounts, all would have been created between the years 1900 and 1902, during Mr. Yardley's residence in Honolulu and employment at the Honolulu Advertiser.

Series Description

Title: Ralph O. Yardley – Political Cartoon Collection

Date Range: c. 1900-1902

Quantity of Records: 361 cartoons, approximately 5 cubic feet

Physical Characteristics: These illustrations were drawn on oversize cardstock paper using charcoal pencil and black ink. The drawings are in good condition with some edges torn or bent. Some dirt and/or scuffmarks are visible on the drawings. A few of the drawings were done on thinner paper and are in fragile condition.

Content Description: Given the era in which these cartoons were created, it is not surprising that many of them are, by today's standards, racially insensitive and politically incorrect. It is not known whether copyright issues may still attach to these published works. Researchers are advised to consult the Copyright Act of 1976, as amended and codified at Title 17, United States Code.

These original records provide pictorial description of political and social events in Honolulu at the turn of the 20th Century, just as Hawaii was organized as a Territory and Sanford B. Dole was appointed Governor, taking office on June 14, 1900. However, without other reference to the contemporary events depicted, the cartoons are difficult to interpret today, as they exist outside of context.

On the front side of approximately half of the sheets, dates appear in charcoal pencil; numbers appear in blue pencil. Approximately half of the sheets do not bear any dates or other identifying information. On the reverse side of some sheets, a caption or description of the illustration appears. It is supposed that the caption is what Yardley proposed the newspaper use as its caption. This is so in several instances. However, the editor may have chosen his own captions as not all are used by the newspaper. Overall, it has not been ascertained whether the author himself placed the dates, blue numbers or captions on these sheets.

Some sheets, perhaps due to cropping done by newspaper editors or the artist, are irregular in shape, i.e., non-rectangular. By the cropping done, some captions on the back have been rendered unreadable. Where possible, the caption has been provided in the container lists as one means of item description.

After initial publication in the Honolulu Advertiser, several of the cartoons were photographed and used by Edward B. Scott, author of The Saga of the Sandwich Islands (1968). Some sheets bear the following reference to later publication in The Saga:

Appears in The Saga of the Sandwich Isles, p. ____

Arrangement: The records appear to be organized or grouped chronologically.

Notes:

1. A copy of The Saga of the Sandwich Isles is in the Archives' Library, call number 996.93 A1S3, and researchers may cross-reference the collection's original sheets with the reproductions in that publication. At times, contextual information found within Scott's book can help researchers understand the cartoon's context better.
2. Many of the drawings have been photographed and the negatives are owned by the Hawaii State Archives. Such drawings will contain the following notation in the Container List, with their negative number: HSA Neg. No. ____.
